

your business operations.

Albert Einstein famously defined insanity as
"doing the same thing over and over again and expecting different results".

In the current financial climate, are you still doing the same things but hoping for different results? At Viable Ventures we know that if you want different results, you have to do different things.

We help you identify the different things that are right for you and your business.

We aim for an absolute minimum Return on Investment of 3:1.
Our solutions avoid the need for major capital investment.

We can help your organisation to work smarter, not harder, by driving out the waste from its activities. Did you know that waste (ie anything you do, make or use that does not add value to your end product or service) and poor resource efficiency cost UK industry £15Bn per year, equating to 4% of total turnover? It's a depressing statistic, but it is also a problem at which we excel in tackling with our clients.

All of our highly skilled, experienced and approachable facilitators possess extensive experience in the Public and Private sectors and bring a vast array of honed skills and capabilities to each project they undertake.

Full details of our specialisations, facilitators' backgrounds and case studies are detailed on this website. If you want to
